The President's Walk by Polk County Science Building.

OUR CAMPUS

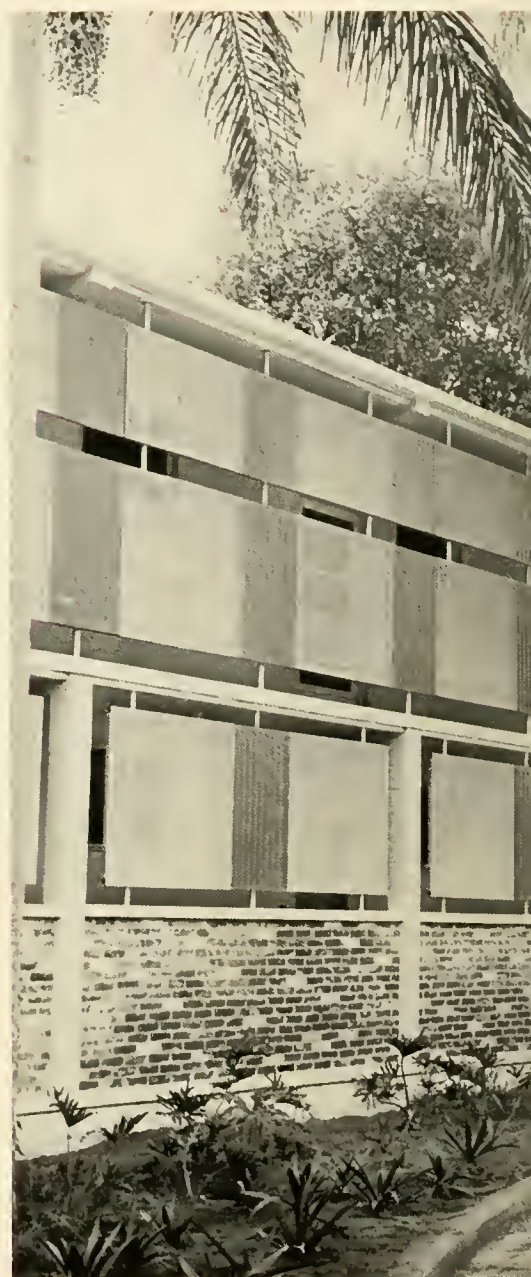

There is a beginning and an end to College Life. Neither can be shown by a distinct break as from a shadow into light, without transition. Likewise it is erroneous to think of the line between naive newcomer and worldly graduate as being distinct. The transition is nebulous, but real. But for literary purposes, we have assumed, as in Genesis, that "In the beginning . . .

CAMPUS CONTINUED

In the beginning a student arrives at Florida Southern. And the student is without completion as a personality, and open for improvement. As a freshman, the student is instructed in physical improvement. Health is taught and the student grows in body. And the growth is good. And the first and the second semester are the freshman year.

CAMPUS CONTINUED

As a sophomore the student is instructed in the spiritual aspects of life under the guidance of the Religion Department. An understanding of life's mysteries is sought and found within the individual soul. During this year, each person formulates his concept of God. And the growth experienced is good.

CAMPUS CONTINUED

Students seek an understanding of theology at many of Lakeland's 105, all denominational churches. The harmony of college and community reaches its peak at the Sunday worship services. And the sophomore grows spiritually. And the first and the second semester are the sophomore year.

As a junior the student reaches out socially. Living together within the dormitories demands harmony with his fellow students. Fraternities and sororities provide opportunities for social growth. And the experience is good.

Within the architectural masterpieces of Frank Lloyd Wright, College Life occurs, a drama in four years, written and directed by individuals, and acted out for an audience of today and tomorrow. This production comprises the major portion of the spectrum of life, from brilliant aliveness to staid thoughtfulness. What clay is to the sculptor, paint to the artist, an instrument to the musician; education is to the future of the individual. The creation is yours.

CAMPUS CONTINUED

In the end a student leaves Florida Southern, a personality complete in the four major areas: physical, spiritual, social, and intellectual. And the growth experienced has been very good indeed.

Above: Enjoyment is part of life at Southern.

Tradition is never-ending as each new year adds its part to a school's heritage.

A backward glimpse, a remembrance of the past, reflected in a moment's thought touched off by the pictures of forgotten incidents. The two-fold story of college life: education and enjoyment, mirrored above and to the left in the faces of students stopped for a moment by the click of a camera.

"And my waist goes down another inch."

Dances, parties, skits, and sometimes just "goofing off" comprise a segment of college life popularized by the press. When properly conducted, these activities contribute much to student enjoyment and relaxation. And they compose many of the memories of "dear old college days."

"Pardon me handsome, but there no smoking in here."

"Well if it isn't Chubby Checker. And it isn't."

The winning skit from the all-campus Pep Rally.

It's finger lickin' good.

FSC coeds demonstrate the "casual look."

The Kappa Sig Olympics give coeds a yearly excuse to return to the days of their tomboyishness. And return they do! Sliding on greased poles, milking cows, and ending up a complete mess are all part of the fun. The loss of femininity is temporary however, as the girls replace garage grease with cold cream the next day.

It has its ups.

. . . and downs.

And at times it gets a little messy.

But the girls enjoy it!?

"How do you turn it on?"

"Help!"

Whether relaxing on the sidelines or participating in the competition, the students will agree that leisure activities put the "life" in college life. Part fun, part education equals a happy student.

Crowds view from the sidelines.

"Relax!"

"Put me down for 'Running Wild' in the fifth."

"Hardesty, I want to see those shoes SHINE!"

Above: "Take your time. I want to finish this story."
Right: "Eat no evil, drink no evil, and . . . ACHOOO!"

Students entering college enter a world of activity, of vital new experiences. Each day begins with classes, which in themselves offer expansion intellectually. Relaxation rather than being wasteful, afterwards, contributes much to the growth of the individual student.

Above: A quick refresher during time out.
Right: Many hours went into decorating for the freshman luau.

Right: "Stop laughing and tell me what I signed."

Below: "A letter from Mother, my newspaper, and, ah, my Peanuts' Coloring Book."

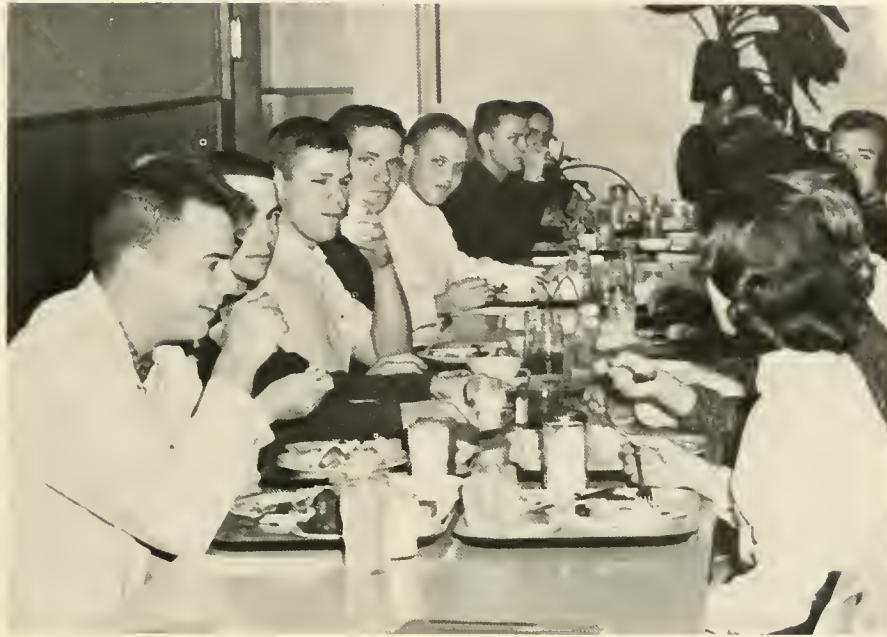

College is not all classroom; nor is it all social life. An intelligent blending of the two produces the well-rounded student, as desirable as the laude graduate. Here we have the student away from studies, a study in socializing.

Right: Laughter breaks the monotony and relieves the tension in a student's day.

Below: Cheerleaders collect money for TB drive.

Right: "I heard that!"

Below: "Now HERE'S what I call an informal party!"

Athletics produce sportsmanlike individuals. Body and mind developed to full capacity must be the end product of college activities. Here we have the student at play, developing his physical side. Intramurals serve as a means to this development.

"It looks like a missile to me!"

"Gee!!!"

Intramural volleyball action.

"Up and over."

"I'm a sore loser."

Students leave class.

"It's 6:12. I wonder where he is."

Right: "This test CAN'T be real."

The reason a student is in any college is to further his education. This is the dominant feature of college life. The academic progression of the student is the concern of the college, his parents, himself, and his nation. Here we have the student in his most important role—a searcher of knowledge.

"What kind of question is this?"

Tests serve as a measurement of academic progression. And academic progression is the true goal of collegiate endeavors. Endeavors reap awards in many ways: success in life, and scholarship trophies to outstanding students and groups.

Tests become a part of everyday life.

Student adds finishing touches to an art project.

"So, that fuzzy little thing's an amoeba."

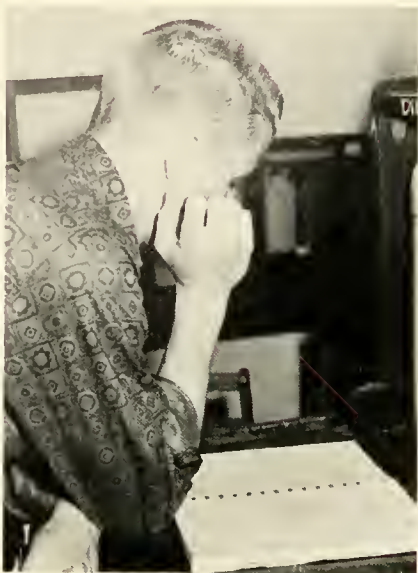

"I missed THAT?"

Sig Eps admire trophies just received for scholastic improvement and highest pledge scholarship.

The end of the academic road is reached and the rewards are reaped. The studies have been long and at times bewildering. The endless reading, the discussions with professors, the library research all yield their knowledge to the persistent student. Life beckons, and the challenge is answered.

Fall is festival time, a time of activity, of change. Fall at college is a "fun" time, with students gaily playing before the winds of winter studies blow the leaves of laughter away. Moments like these often mean more than mere memorization or collection of classroom facts.

FRED WARING

Miss Interlachen Beauty Judges

Fred Waring, internationally known as conductor of his choral group, The Pennsylvanians, served as the finalist judge in the 1963 Miss Interlachen contest. Three Lakeland city fathers—Charles Johnson, George Trask, and Robert Trohn—had the difficult job of reducing the number of candidates to the eight finalists.

It is with sincere appreciation to Mr. Waring and the other judges that the Interlachen announces Miss Interlachen of 1963 and the members of her court.

Varsity Basketball

Florida Southern's basketball team showed the students and the people of Lakeland some exciting basketball this year. The Mocs put together some fine playing, hustling and determination to come up with the combination needed for an above-average season.

The team lost the services of veteran co-captain Ed Kershner at about the half-way point of the season, but sophomore John Wells and freshman Bob Bowman alternated at the vacant position and put forth fine performances. The over-all desire of the team not to give up even in defeat plus the spirit of newcomer Tim Eisnaugle, sharp shooting of Mack Mullis, and play of Rick Duncan can be the trademark of this year's team.

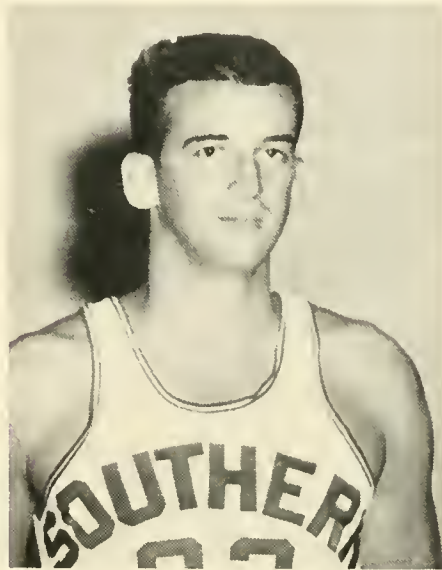

Next year's squad will be hard hit by graduation with the loss of three seniors, Mack Mullis, Len Wozniak, and Rick Duncan; however, many talented sophomores and juniors from this year's team should provide the nucleus for another profitable campaign next year.

Tim Eisnaugle and Len Wozniak scramble for a rebound with Miami's 7'1" Mike McCoy.

Hit by the loss of some top players from last season's squad, the Soccer Mocs suffered a disastrous season. At times the Mocs put forth some fine play and many exciting moments with the individual performances of Stu White and Charles Pietersz.
